Mother McAuley Celebrates Catholic Schools Week

To celebrate Catholic Schools Week, students at Mother McAuley created a distinct visual piece that serves as a reminder of how we touch the lives of others. The students each took a star and "decorated" it with how they are making a difference in the lives of others through service to their home, school and community. McAuley's red, white and blue stars correspond with the theme of National Catholic Schools Week, A+ for America, as well as McAuley's school year theme of "Go Make a Difference."

McAuley's stairways and hallways are lined with stars showcasing the numerous methods of service students provide to others. A few of the many ways McAuley students help others include planning food drives, volunteering at Special Olympics and Ronald McDonald House, working with younger students in their parishes and elementary schools, and helping at shelters and soup kitchens.

Service is an essential component to learning at Mother McAuley and each student is expected to respond compassionately to the needs of their community.
